

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

When a specific event occurs in the execution of a predetermined information processing program, a passing rate of time in a virtual space structured by the predetermined information processing program is partially changed. In this manner, for example, an event occurring in the virtual space for a very short period of time can be operated, better entertainment properties can be realized, and a sense of entertainment which is fresh for a user can be given to the user.